J. L DAVIS GETS APPOINTMENT OF TRUSTEE

J. L. Davis is one of those who have honors thrust upon them. At the meeting of the city trustees last Tuesday evening he was appointed unanimously to serve the unexpired term of Mayor Smith, recently resigned. Davis returned Wednesday evening from a visit to Vallejo to find himself elected.

He is taking the matter philosophically, all things considered.

Wanted--Sixty Dollars. Apply to Gus Keller

Gus Keller, of Ukiah, wants $60. A lot of us are in the same fix, but Gus says he has earned this and is entitled to it, but does not know where to get it.

A few weeks ago the trustees of Willow district, south of Ukiah, engaged Gus to paper their school house.

"It's south of Ukiah. O, you know where Willow school is. South of town," Good answered.

Pasting Good's meager description of the location in his hat, Gus started out to find a schoolhouse "south of town." He found one, crawled through a window, opened the door and moved his paraphernalia in. He pulled the paper off the wall and put on a new covering. Then he went after his money. The trustees wanted to inspect the work They went to the schoolhouse, but could find no traces of any work having been done.

Gus was called on the carpet and accused of attempted graft.

"I papered it, sure I did," wailed the unfortunate decorator.

"Well, it has never been touched so far as we can find," the trustees rejoined.

"I papered some schoolhouse" and Gus felt a sinking sensation as it began to dawn on him what had happened.

The trustees of Lima school, also "south of town", are rejoicing in brand new wallpaper for their school building and wondering what kind fairy donated the same.

And Gus wants $60 from somebody.

WILLITS, Sept 2.—Sunday afternoon Austin Muir's barns and contents were almost totally destroyed by fire. In addition to a large quantity of baled hay Mr. Muir had considerable grain stored and also his creamery outfit and farm tools. He estimates his loss at about $3,000 with a few hundred dollars insurance.

Lloyd Wallace Sells Fine Dairy Ranch

The fine dairy ranch and equipment belonging to Lloyd Wallace was sold by him this week to a recent arrival from Montana. The price is said to have been $32,500.

BUDGET SHAVED CLOSE BUT TAXES SOAR HIGH

Property Owners Face Rate of $3.00 Inside and $3.60 Outside Incorporated Towns

SCHOOL TAXES ADD TO BURDEN

With the taxpayers clamoring for a rate not to exceed $2.80, the same as that of last year, and with a budget staring them in the face calling for an increase to $4.6693 it was a difficult problem which the supervisors faced last Tuesday when they met for the purpose of setting the tax rate for the current year. The situation called for some financial juggling of a high order, and the juggling was done. Assisted by a committee of the taxpayers' association the board trimmed and pared for the entire day and far into the night. The result was a sort of compromise between the two extremes, with a rate of $3.60 outside incorporated towns and $3.00 inside.

The rate is segregated as follows:

	Estimated	Levied
Co. gen. fund	$2.9070	$1.96
Salary fund	.2670	.267
4% bond fund	.0230	.023
Unapportioned county school fund	.6230	.500
Unapportioned High school fund	.2493	.25
Total rate inside	$4.0693	$3.000
Gen. road fund	.4000	.400
Special road fund	.2000	.200
Total rate outside	$4.6693	$3.60

In addition there are a number of school taxes in various districts to be added in those districts to the above.

In the incorporated towns the rate of $3.00 is to be added to the city tax rate, which is to be set in October and then the school taxes where there are such are to be added to this. The result in most cases is guaranteed to stimulate the nervous system of the most blase of taxpayers and to furnish him with a sensation comparable to the jolt from a high voltage wire. For instance in Ukiah we have the base rate of $3.00. Add to this the city rate, which it is estimated will be in the neighborhood of $1.40, making 4.40. Flavor the decoction with theh igh school tax of $.25, and add a dash of grammar school special at $.20. The final result, $4.85, is calculated to floor the average property owner.

But, cheer up, you Ukiahites. Little Potter Valley will have a school tax of $.75 to add to her city and county rates, while the poor unfortunate in Fort Bragg will have $.70.

The schedule of the additional rates in theh igh school and grammar school districts is as follows:

	Estimate	Levy
Anderson Val. U. H. S. Special	$.250	$.250
Ft. Bragg U. H. S., Special	.242	.242
Do., Bond	.058	.058
Hopland U. H. S. spec	.300	.300
Mendocino high spec	.044	.050
Pt. Arena high spec	.207	.200
Round Val high spec	.175	.175
Ukiah high spec	.253	.250

MURRAY AND CONNICK MAKE EUREKA FLIGHT

WILLITS, Sept. 2.—Undaunted by their previous failure, Aviator Dayton Murray, who was born and raised at Mendocino City, and Observer Carl Connick of Eureka, landed here in their airplane last Sunday afternoon. After a short stop they took to the air again and spent that night in Eureka. About a month ago they met with a mishap here when they started to rise and wrecked their airplane so badly that it had to be shipped back to the city to be repaired. They used the same machine last Sunday and it took to the air like a bird. The aviators are engaged by the Humboldt County Aero Club and it is their intention to make regular trips between Eureka and San Francisco in the near future.

BARK GRINDING PLANT LOCATED AT LAYTONVILLE

LAYTONVILLE, Sept. 4.—Scott & Thomas, the San Francisco firm which is getting out the tan bark on the Rancho El Primero in this valley, have just installed a tan bark grinder and are preparing tan bark for foreign shipment. The grinder started work last Monday and has a capacity of 30 tons per day. The firm has a contract for 1,000 cords to be shipped to Japan and 250 tons of this order must be in San Francisco before October 10th in order to be loaded on the steamer which sails on that day. After grinding, the bark is sacked and it will keep the grinding crew working overtime to fill their orders.

DAVIDSON RANCH SOLD; BRINGS SUM OF $25,000

Allen Davidson has sold his ranch two miles west of Willits to the Little Lake Land Company. The place contains 1,796 acres and is one of the best stock ranches in that vicinity.

While the exact purchase price has not been given out, still we have been informed that it was just a shade under $25,000.

The new owners bought it with the intention of holding the ranch until prices reach a higher figure. Ranch property is in great demand and land values are gradually climbing all of the time.

Contracts Grapes At $32.50 Per Ton

Leslie Crawford has contracted his entire crop of grapes this year to eastern parties at a price of $32.50 per ton. The grapes are to be shipped east in lug boxes. The buyers furnish the boxes and the grower harvests the grapes and loads them into refrigerator cars.

What disposition the firm who is buying the grapes intends to make of them is not known.

Don't Start Anything at State and Perkins

Time after time some poor Geek has tried to slip one over at the northeast corner of Perkins and State St. where the brightest minds in town are wont to congregate of mornings and settle everything from politics and scandal to the most obstruse problems of our modern civilization. Those who have tried the game once are wary of the versatile minds of the denizens at that cornor, and rarely attempt a second coup. Sol. Cohn, purveyor of drygoods on South State street, is the latest victim of the unscrupulous gang.

Sol wandered up from his stamping ground last Monday morning brimful of pep and enthusiasm. Bo Waldteufel had just been holding forth and had stopped in the midst of his oration to eject the remains of a cud of Mumm's curve cut, or whatever his brand is. Sol took advantage of the opportunity.

"Say" he broke in, "what do you think? Jim Lambert shot a deer this morning on the hillside above the road and it rolled down right to the car and all he had to do was to dress it and load it in. Didn't have to hunt it or pack it after he had killed it. That's pretty good, aint it?"

Bo transfixed him with a glassy glare.

"That's nothing. One day Bub Powell was out hunting and saw a deer above the road. He shot it and it rolled down to the car and into a box on the rear end and Bub didn't even have to lift it into the car."

"Yes, I was there," Bill Waldteufel added, "He shot it through the neck and the bullet cut its head nearly off as clean as a knife could have done it. Bub didn't even have to cut its head off."

"Yes, and don't you remember," Doc Squires put in his contribution "as it rolled down the hill, the hide caught on some brush and skinned it as clean as a whistle. Bub didn't even have to skin it."

The bunch was now going strong.

"I saw it after they brought it to town", said Bill Held. "It was dressed, too, when it rolled down the hillside, a sharp rock slit it up the belly and a burnt bush caught the insides and tore them all out. Bub didn't even have to clean it."

"Yes, I heard that, "Bo substantiated," but as I didn't see it I didn't know whether to believe it or not."

"It's true, alright," Charley Kasch had kept still as long as possible. "I know because Bub told me so himself."

"Yes," George Richardson dipped in,—but what George had in mind to say will forever remain a mystery, for, as he looked around to address his remarks to Cohn, that worthy was discovered across the street with downbent head and pensive mien, slowly strolling back to native haunts to pour his troubles into the sympathetic ear of Will Cox.

"Well, as I am saying," and Bo paused to rend a new chew from his cut "the extraneous influences that stimulate the specific promulgations of the outward transudation of moisture from an inexhaustible source, are constantly and consistently reacting with an effervescent result upon the emanations from ——" here the scribe lost consciousness.

Exhibits Wanted for S. F. Land Show

He will call personally and get them, put them in cold storage where necessary, and will attend to giving them proper display at the land show.

Write or telephone, Leslie Crawford, Ukiah, R. F. D.

HIGHWAY ENGINEERS CONSULT WITH SUPERVISOR

The engineers on the Ukiah-Tahoe highway route were in consultation with Supervisor E. M. Ford yesterday in regard to the question of whether the highway route shall go from Riverside to Calpella or to the Forks, three miles north of this city. The engineers are willing to build the road to the Forks if several rights of way needed to straighten out the road between the Forks and Riverside can be obtained.

Mr. Ford and the engineers went over the route to interview the property owners yesterday and last evening reported that the prospects look promising for the obtaining of the concessions wanted.

WILLITS NOTES

WILLITS, Sept. 2.—We were under the impression that the country was dry, but there is still some booze left. Last week Nightwatchman L. C. Foster arrested Joe McDonald for being drunk and disorderly. McDonald had a lovely bun on and was making himself very obnoxious. He would not divulge the source of his happiness and the opinion is quite general that we have some blind piggers in our midst. He was taken before Judge E. H. Roth who first gave him a lecture on the evils of drunkenness and then fined him $10 of lawful money of the United States. Joe was very repentent and has decided that the next time he will be careful enough not to get caught.

So many of our people have gone to San Francisco to attend the fleet festivities that our town looks like a deserted village. The exodus started last week and practically every family who could do so are now somewhere in the bay region. Duane Bittenbender and family have found out by sad experience that rooms are not to be had in the immediate vicinity of San Francisco. They did not take the precaution to engage rooms in advance and could find nothing about the bay. They also tried most of the towns in Marin county with the same result, and then went on to Petaluma where the same old story was told them. They now decided to spend the night in their auto but Duane happened to find some railroadmen he knew and they allowed them to sleep in their caboose.

A daughter was born to the wife of Leland Wade on August 29th.

Over the Grade at Mountain View

Wednesday, when Mr. Bailey and wife, of Fresno, were making the sharp curve near Mountain View, their auto ran off the grade and rolled down the ravine side to a distance of 125 feet when it lodged. When the machine run over the grade, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were thrown out but luckily escaped being caught under it, though receiving some bad bruises from their fall. On Saturday, Ed Zimmerman went to the scene of the accident and raised the machine, which was found not badly damaged, and brought it to town. It was a lucky and narrow escape from a serious accident.—Pt. Arena Record.

LACKED ALL REAL GREATNESS

Attitude of William Hohenzollern, Stripped of Imperial Trappings, Shows His True Character.

If William Hohenzollern had fallen from so high to his present state less obviously as the result of his own acts, there would be some, and even much, reluctance felt for treating him otherwise than as the victim of cruel fate. That, however, he is not, and so deliberate, as well as so serious, was his offending that he has no claim for a closing of eyes to his crimes—no right to expect the tenderness of consideration he never gave.

The chances are, apparently, that he will pass the rest of his life, not happily, indeed, but in a retirement untroubled by the material cares common to the great majority of mankind, and it is a source of entirely legitimate satisfaction to call attention to the poor figure he cuts, now that he has been stripped of his crown, his scepter and his imperial robes.

These, as a matter of fact, were all that differentiated him from other folk. In and since his downfall he has shown nothing of the heroic, nothing of the personal courage, of the willingness to die for a cause, that have marked so many million men in so many armies, including his own. If he sincerely believed his right to rule was divine, it was the most cowardly form of desertion for him to flee his country the moment he feared for his personal safety. By so doing he made certain and immediate the ruling of Germany by somebody with no pretense to a divine authorization.

Many another royal villain has dared to die, standing erect with face to the foe, but this poor emperor scuttles off into the unwelcoming Holland, and leaves his sons and his wife to take care of themselves! But it is no wonder he is most of all afraid of his own people. He promised them victory and loot, only to rob them of the wealth, respect and happiness they already had in such abundant measure, and he substituted for it all a crushing defeat, pinching hunger and the contempt and detestation of the whole world.—New York Times.

WEARY OF ROUTINE

Eternal Protest Against Sameness of Things.

Act of Man Who Died Rather Than Submit to the Wearisome Commonplaceness of Life Causes Interesting Comment.

A newspaper item reports the suicide of a man who declared that he was tired of everlastingly lacing his shoes and then unlacing them again. Petty enough the act appears in the grist of the day's news, but the report of it (be it fact or fiction) lingers in the mind till against a larger background of time it begins to take on significance, even to find a place beside immortal acts of legend and familiar attitudes of art. Here was a man who found the master knot of his fate in his shoe lacings. Was he a fool or a hero? Alexander has fame for an act which as a symbol might have much the same significance, a resolute blow of the sword through the Gordian knot, which disposes of the difficulty without solving the problem. For himself the suicide had dismissed routine with a suave gesture and with superb finality, but he leaves mankind in the attitude of Laocoon, agonizingly entangled in shoe lacings, the serpent routine, huge, insensate, unrelaxing. In its grip man writhes forever, hopeless of escape. To this group the suicide waves a jaunty farewell—"The best of luck to you," he says. "I'm out of it, anyway!"

Whatever our scorn for him, we must admit that he voices unmistakably the eternal human protest against routine; that it is really only in the suavity of his gesture and the supreme finality of the rejection that he goes beyond the rest of us. The feeling that commanded his act is nearly the most universal of human impulses. We all rebel bitterly in the days when heaven lies about us, and the later shades of the prison house are nothing more than the creeping paralysis of hopeless submission. Only those of us who have trodden the mill so long that we are almost irreclaimably subdued to what we work in prefer, in such times as these when we have the choice, counters and ledgers to trenches and barbed wire. The lad who with a whoop of joy flings behind him his columns of figures or vaults the counter in his eagerness to rush into poison gas and machine-gun fire, though his gesture is one of bravery rather than suavity, is that of Alan Breck, rather than of Beau Brummel, makes his rejection of routine no whit less final than does the hero of the newspaper item. And he is not the one in a million who makes the National army.—Robert P. Utter in Harper's Magazine.

Geological Survey a War-Map Printer.

The contribution to the war of the map engraving and printing plant of the United States geological survey, department of the interior, has not been limited to the reproduction of the surveys executed by the topographic engineers, but has included the reprinting of hydrographic and British admiralty charts in large numbers for the navy department and of various military maps of French and Belgian areas for the war department. Motor-truck route maps and airplane route maps have also been compiled and printed for the use of the army, as well as special charts and maps for use at instruction camps. An interesting use of this specially equipped printing plant has been the regular issue of camouflage charts for the navy. The regular geologic map work has given place during the period of the war to these exigency calls for color printing for military purposes.

Preparation.

These twelve-year-old twins are in the seventh grade of a Terre Haute school. Both have paper routes and with the proceeds from them buy their own clothes and Thrift stamps. It takes self-denial often to buy the stamps, but still they always buy every Monday morning.

For your boy and my boy, and all the boys out there,

She noticed that Clinton and Fred did not sing with enthusiasm and wondered. But at noon she learned the reason. Clinton brought her a crumpled five-dollar bill. "It's for a bond for Fred and me," he explained. "It will keep us humping to pay it out, but we're goin' to do it so we can sing that bond song and not feel like slackers when we're doing it.—Indianapolis News.

"Industrious Youth."

An industrious youngster has been busy at Palo Alto, Cal., during the past season with a war garden. It is about 70 feet square. On that patch of ground he planted a variety of garden truck, cared for it all summer long and did the selling. He realized something like $100, which he invested in Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps. Besides this he stored away in the cellar a fair quantity of squash and other vegetables for winter use. The youngster is Rev. E. J. Gillespie, retired, eighty-three years old.

He Changed the Subject.

"Miss Wombat, do you think two can live as cheaply as one?"

"I have never given the matter any thought. When I get married I expect to make the money fly."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Stationery for the Farmer

The up-to-date farmer should have neatly printed letterheads and envelopes. Name your farm and let your stationery carry the name. If you specialize on some particular line, let your stationery announce that fact also. Ordered in lots of several hundred each of letterheads and envelopes printed stationery is no more expensive than the blank kind you get at the stationery store. Write or call for prices.

WHY IS WOMAN RESTLESS?

DESTINY OF NATIONS DEPENDS UPON CONTENTED HOMES.

By W. D. Lewis,
President Texas Farmers' Union.

Why is woman dissatisfied? Why does she grow restless under the crown of womanhood? Why is she weary of the God-given jewel of motherhood? Is it not a sufficient political achievement for woman that future rulers nurse at her breast, laugh in her arms and kneel at her feet? Can ambition leap to more glorious heights than to sing lullabies to the world's greatest genuises, chant melodies to master minds and rock the cradle of human destiny?

God pity our country when the handshake of the politician is more gratifying to woman's heart than the patter of children's feet.

Woman Is Ruler Over All.

Why does woman chafe under restraint of sex? Why revile the hand of nature? Why discard the skirts that civilization has clung to since the beginning of time? Why lay aside this hallowed garment that has wiped the tears of sorrow from the face of childhood? In its sacred embrace every generation has hidden its face in shame; clinging to its motherly folds, tottering children have learned to play hide and seek and from it youth learned to reverence and respect womanhood. Can man think of his mother without this consecrated garment?

Why this inordinate thirst for power? Is not woman all powerful? Man cannot enter this world without her consent, he cannot remain in peace without her blessing and unless she sheds tears of regret over his departure, he has lived in vain. Why this longing for civic power when God has made her ruler over all? Why crave authority when man bows down and worships her? Man has given woman his heart, his name and his money. What more does she want?

Can man find it in his heart to look with pride upon the statement that his honorable mother-in-law was one of the most powerful political bosses in the country, that his distinguished grandmother was one of the ablest filibusters in the Senate or that his mother was a noted warrior and her name a terror to the enemy? Whither are we drifting and where will we land?

God Save Us From a Hen-Pecked Nation.

I follow the plow for a living and my views may have in them the smell of the soil; my hair is turning white under the frost of many winters and perhaps I am a little old-fashioned, but I believe there is more moral influence in the dress of woman than in all the statute books of the land. As an agency for morality, I wouldn't give my good old mother's homemade gowns for all the suffragette's constitutions and by-laws in the world.

As a power for purifying society, I wouldn't give one prayer of my saintly mother for all the women's votes in Christendom. As an agency for good government, I wouldn't give the plea of a mother's heart for righteousness for all the oaths of office in the land.

There is more power in the smile of woman than in an act of congress. There are greater possibilities for good government in her family of laughing children than in the cabinet of the president of the United States.

The destiny of this nation lies in the home and not in the legislative halls. The hearthstone and the family Bible will ever remain the source of our inspiration and the Acts of the Apostles will ever shine brighter than the acts of Congress.

This country is law-mad. Why add to a statute book, already groaning under its own weight, the hysterical cry of woman? If we never had a chance to vote again in a lifetime and did not pass another law in twenty-five years, we could survive the ordeal, but without home, civilization would wither and die.

God save these United States from becoming a hen-pecked nation; help us keep sissies out of Congress and forbid that women become stepfathers to government, is the prayer of the farmers of this country.

A DIVINE COVENANT.

God Almighty gave Eve to Adam with the pledge that she would be his helpmeet and with this order of companionship, civilization has towered to its greatest heights. In this relationship, God has blessed woman and man has honored her and after four thousand years of progress, she now proposes to provoke God to decoy man by asking for suffrage, thereby by amending an agreement to which she was not a party.

Woman, remember that the Israelite scorned a divine covenant, and as a result wandered forty years in the wilderness without God. Likewise man should remember that it is a dangerous thing to debase woman by law. Rome tried lowering woman's standard and an outraged civilization tore the clothes off the backs of the human race and turned them out to roam in the world naked and unashamed.

AID TO SOLDIERS ON MARCH

Strap Fastened Tightly About Foot Said to Be Valuable for Prevention of Fatigue.

Bonnette (Presse Medicale) calls attention to the value of a strap fastened tightly about the foot to facilitate locomotion when the extremities are tired from prolonged marching and counter-marching. Under these conditions the plantar tissues sag, the nerves are pressed and dragged upon and the ligaments become tender. Immobilization of joints by means of the strap brings relief and permits the making an additional effort to complete the march. The strap is passed in figure of eight fashion under the instep, in front of the foot and behind the ankle—over the shoe. This procedure has proved so effective that some have used the straps for preventive purposes to defer fatigue.

Signaled for Fifty-Six Hours.

It is the eternal vigilance of the sailor of our ships, his unflagging faithfulness to duty, his steadfastness to his detail, his bound-to-win spirit that has made him the man to be counted on every time and all the time.

There was a young man serving as a signal man on a ship that had gone aground. With his waving flags he was talking the silent language of the ships, calling for help. The lives of hundreds of men, the safety of his ship depended on him.

For 56 hours of unbroken duty—seven ordinary working days—he remained at his post, scanning the sea and with unerring skill handling his signals.

And he was a country boy—from Oklahoma.—Great Lakes Bulletin.

Social and Club Activities

Ukiah holds the unique distinction of being the home of Carl Purdy, famous creator of flowers beautiful and we have cause for just pride in that distinction. Even during the critical years of the war his fame continued to spread until his slightest observation has become a matter of interest and gratification to garden lovers and students of plant life the world over. Said a friend recently "In passing through the Palace Hotel dining room in San Francisco a few days ago I observed Carl Purdy dining with Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst and a party of distinguished guests and their deference to him was very marked." All of which leads us to remark that no more striking example can be given of his far-reaching power than the annual pilgrimage of learned men who risk discomfort and other kindred ills to visit the hillside gardens so aptly named "The Terraces" for a few hours with its learned owner who so modestly says "Among my firm friends everywhere today, I count many who were only casual acquaintances yesterday."

Mr. and Mrs. Sierck will reside in San Rafael. As has been intimated the bride is well known in Ukiah where her prowess on the basket ball team of the Willits high school won much admiration and success for her team. She is an extremely versatile young woman and her coterie of friends in this section is large indeed. Mr. Sierck is an employee of the N. W. P. railway and when he and his charming bride depart for their new home they will carry with them the best wishes of many friends.

CLUB WOMEN TAKE IMPORTANT STAND

The limelight of publicity has been directed recently upon the Mendocino Study Club of Mendocino because they are a body of women united upon an important subject—that of the need for a League of Nations—and they made their unity known last week when they indorsed the movement openly and publicly. Regardless of politics they had our immortal Lincoln's vision when he said "With malice toward none, with charity toward all, with firmness in the right as God gives up to see the right." This doctrine of Lincoln's might well be applied to the international relations of today as well as to the problems of yesterday. In the words of Professor Edward Krebiel of Stanford University "If you have nothing better to offer the world than the League of Nations why don't you accept the best that is offered you." The club is a member of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

TALENT MUCH APPRECIATED

A pretty incident occurred in connection with the departure of Miss Marian Handy for Mills College this week. Almost since pinafore days the young lady had acted as organist for the evening service of the Presbyterian Church and also as organist for the Sabbath School and was always at her post of duty through the years. In token of their appreciation of her unselfish service the Ladies' Presbyterian Society presented the young woman with a handsome Gladstone traveling bag together with a prettily worded letter of appreciation and good wishes and in addition she was fairly deluged with roses and small gifts from individual members of the church.

Barker and two little daughters, Virginia and Barbara, also returned Wednesday evening after a most delightful month's stay in San Francisco where they were the guests of Mrs. J. H. Barker and Mrs. Alma Heger. They, too, participated in the festivities attendant upon Fleet Week in San Francisco.

LADIES PRESBYTERIAN SOCIETY ENJOYS MEETING

The monthly meeting of the Ladies Presbyterian Society occurred yesterday afternoon in the church parlors and was fraught with unusual interest and pleasure. The meeting was in the nature of an afternoon tea and during the enjoyment of the program the ladies worked most diligently with sewing for the society. Program numbers included a dramatic reading by Mrs. J. L. Brown and a number of musical selections by Mrs. Minnie Wellman. Mrs. J. L. Brown, Mrs. Hunter Brown and Mrs. Breckenridge were hostesses for the members and served most delectable refreshments. Mrs. Robert Redwine of Covelo, who is a guest of Mrs. Jessie Redwine, was present as a guest of the society.

SYMPATHY EXPRESSED

A very sad bereavement, that has aroused the deepest sympathy here is that of Mrs. Thurza Hargis Norton, whose husband, James E. Norton, passed away in mid-ocean off the port of Hong Kong July 29, while en route to San Francisco from Manila. The first intimation of his illness came in a cable to Mrs. Norton who was a guest of her sister, Mrs. W. P. Fuller at her country nome in Gravelly Valley. Owing to the isolation of the place the message was delayed in reaching Mrs. Norton who left at once for San Francisco in the hope of catching a steamer so that she might board the ship that was bringing her husband home. But when she reached there she found a later cable announcing his death on board ship. The vessel carrying his remains docked this week and the funeral service was held in Oakland. Mrs. Norton had made reservations on a liner leaving in October for the islands where she intended to join her husband and his untimely death has plunged the family into the deepest gloom. Beside the bereaved young wife there are two little children, Thurza Mary and James E. Norton and two brothers left to mourn. Mr. Norton was a native of New York aged 44 years and a wealthy and prominent business man of the Philippine Islands.

ENJOYING EASTERN TOUR

Mrs. Bertha Emery continues to keep local friends posted of her whereabouts in the eastern states during her tour and writes the most interesting and graphic descriptions of her adventures and impressions. Of course she speaks of her impressions of the art galleries of the eastern cities which she has enjoyed more than all else. In Boston she and Miss Grace visited all the places of historic interest—and they are indeed numerous. Speaking of the Boston Common she says: "The foreign children bathe and swim there in the frog pond and I wonder what the public health authorities of California would think of that. There is no sanitation there as the pond is never cleaned and the children dress and undress right before the public since there are no screens or dressing rooms to shield them." In New York Mrs. Emery found the high cost of living far above California. In Maine where she visited the relatives of her mother, the late Mrs. Luce, she found the country extremely interesting and beautiful and made many sketches of the old homestead where her mother spent her girlhood. She will return to Ukiah about September 10th.

MISS GRACE EMERY WEDDED IN PITTSBURG

Local friends are in receipt of the wedding announcements of Miss Grace Anita Emery and Mr. Frederick A. Niepp which event took place in Pittsburg, Pa., Sunday, August 17, 1919, at Emory Methodist Church. The bride, who has been touring the eastern states with her mother, Mrs. Bertha Emery, was modishly attired in a traveling gown in the new shade known as "old blue" with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Niepp are domiciled at 424 So. Fairmont Avenue, Pittsburg. Both young people grew to maturity in Ukiah and both are held in very high esteem by scores of friends who will extend felicitations and best wishes for happiness and prosperity. Mr. Niepp has only recently been mustered out of the service, after serving through the great European war and holds a splendid position with a big electrical firm. Mrs. Neipp was a prominent member of the Kosmos Club which organization showered her with many attentions prior to her departure for the east.

Beware of Solicitors in Garb of Soldiers

A considerable number of Ukiah people were victimized the past week by a one-armed man in soldier's garb. He represented that he had lost his arm in service in France. He was soliciting for magazine subscriptions and the women especially fell for his yarn hard.

He was gathered in by the sheriff's office yesterday and it now transpires that he never was in the service and lost his arm in an accident when a boy.

Navarro Train Badly Wrecked

A serious wreck occurred on the Wendling railroad one day last week when a locomotive and four carloads of ties piled up in a gulch forty feet below the track.

The locomotive landed upside down in the bottom of the ravine and the cars piled on top of it. All were badly smashed up.

All of the train crew jumped and escaped without injuries.

Spain Fighting Malaria.

Through reforesting marshes as a preventive measure and cultivating medicinal herbs for curative purposes, Spain is credited with a recent material reduction of malaria, in spite of quinine scarcity and other war disadvantages. The chief malarial area of the country is estimated at 741,330 acres, and the effort is being made to reclaim as much of this as possible. The 233,404 cases of malaria in 1917 caused a loss in work of 3,515,595 days with a money loss estimated at $20,000,000.

MENDOCINO TO PARTICIPATE IN GOOD ROADS MEETING

(Santa Rosa Republican.)

County good roads committees from San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Solano, Sacramento, Mendocino and Lake will meet here Saturday, September 13, to discuss means and methods of rushing through State highway construction in this part of the State. The delegations will form a permanent organization and officers will be elected.

Invitations to the delegates were sent out by County Clerk Felt Saturday. In the letter that he has forwarded to these delegates he has emphasized the importance of developing a closer union among the counties of this section of the state, pointing out the good results that have been obtained by the counties of the Sacramento Valley through co-operation.

All the counties, Felt said Saturday, are taking up them atter of establishing closer relations with their neighbors, except Lake county. This county, he says, needs assistance more than the other counties and has been the least active in joining in the present co-operative program that is being drawn up.

A special delegate will be sent up to Lake county next week to speak before the Board of Supervisors of that county. This delegate will probably be one of the supervisors of Sonoma, Felt said.

In speaking of the work of this committee, Felt affirmed that its organization will not be merely for the promotion of the highways of this section but for the carrying out of many other proposed projects that will be of benefit to the people of this part of the State.

Aerial Forest Patrol to Land at Lakeport

ALDER SPRINGS, August 30.—The Air Service, in further co-operation with the Forest Service, will, within the next few days, start a fire patrol from Redding to Lakeport. The route to be covered will take in the whole of the California forest. Forest Ranger G. E. Squires has completed arrangements for a landing field at Lakeport and has erected a sign for the guidance of the aviator in making his landing.

Couldn't Find Him.

Japanese bellboys at a Seattle hotel are polite. In fact too polite to ask a gentleman to repeat anything when he speaks to them. So when a busy clerk said, "Boy, sign light," meaning to turn on the lights in the front of the building, the boy rushed to the counter, picked up a tray with a card on it and went through the lobby and dining room crying:

"Mr. Signlight, Mr. Signlight. Call for Mr. Signlight."

He reported that "Mr. Signlight" could not be found.

How Monument Was Started.

Many months ago a girl—the sweetheart of a soldier at Camp Devens, Mass.—brought to the camp a bit of stone from her home and gravely laid it on a designated spot. That little action was the beginning of the sweetheart's monument.

In the months following, other girls, the rich and the poor, from the coast fishing villages and the Berkshire hills, brought bits of stone and laid them close to the first.

Today where the first piece of rock was laid, there is a tall shaft composed of hundreds of multi-colored stones. It was dedicated as the sweetheart's monument and has a bronze tablet with the inscription: "To the memory of those who at the call of humanity laid aside their vocations to become soldiers in the grand army of liberty."

How to Tackle Business.

There's satisfaction in getting down to business.

It's a worry when you feel the responsibility resting upon you and you can't change the weight. To be able to get down to business after every interruption, to take up the thread where it was dropped without having to go back, makes a man feel like a conqueror. This consciousness of strength helps him master trials without worry. That leaves a reserve for other demands that shows a man's strength. Once feel that you are master of your own self and the problems that confront you and you can tackle double duty and get away with it. It's a matter of getting down to business and letting other things go. It's the mark of success offered the many but mastered by the few. Be one of them.

How Flying Tanks Operate.

One of the reasons why the Germans quit was that the flying tank was coming into large use by the allies. The Huns had learned to dread any hint of a tank but their own. The flying tank is an armored battleplane that could not be punctured by small artillery and the business it could do with the enemy was something fierce.

POWER OF MIND OVER BODY

The fact as stated by Surgeon General Ireland that "more than 2,000 American soldiers in France suffering from shell shock were cured by news of the signing of the armistice" is an interesting contribution to the pathology of nervous disease. These war hospital patients were not suffering from an imaginary ailment; the physical manifestations of their affliction were apparent, amounting in some cases to bodily disfigurement. Yet their cure seems to have been entirely due to the influence of the imagination, being instantly effected by their realization that they would not again be subjected to the same experience.

This evidence of the mind's power over the body will afford great satisfaction to believers in the efficacy of mental or spiritual methods of healing. What have the materialists to say about it? Psychiatrists will allege the capacity of their art to cure disease of this nature, and according to a statement from the surgeon general's office "improved methods of combating the affliction" in army hospitals have materially reduced it.

Yet the fact remains of nature's dramatic and immediate cure by the simple means of removing apprehension. Medical practice has still some way to go before equaling this demonstration of the great possibilities in mental healing.

How Explorer Fared in Arctic.

Another cherished illusion is dispelled and relegated to the junk heap of vivid misconceptions that have suddenly faded. Explorer Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who has returned from a five-years' cruise in the regions around the North pole, tells us that the weather up there is by no means the frigid terror we have pictured in our minds. It is much cooler in central Siberia than at Herschel Island. Even near the geographical pole the climate never gets really bad, although the mercury occasionally runs down to 60 below zero! Indeed, it was so mild and compatible with physical comfort that he usually disrobed on the porch of his igloo and passed the evening in his underwear, resting at night in his sleeping bag. His underwear, by the way, was of reindeer's skin with the fur side inside. He has explored some 250,000 square miles amid all kinds of weather, and claims to have suffered no hardships until his return to civilization.

MAYFLOWERS

By EDITH M. RICE.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"It's just a perfect day to go mayflowering, Auntie," exclaimed Joyce. "Do you mind if I see if I can find any in Mrs. Burn's pasture?"

"But Joyce, that is a very long way from here," answered her aunt, "and besides, it is a very lonely walk as no one lives out that way."

"Why, Auntie," laughed the girl, "you know nothing will happen to me around here, where everybody knows everybody else. I'll be all right."

"Well, dear," sighed Aunt Mary, "all right, you may go, but be sure to be back by five o'clock."

With a laughing remark, and a wave of her hand, Joyce Lynd was off, walking briskly down the country road. She was a very jolly girl and exceedingly popular in the small town. Since her parents died, ten years before, she had lived with her aunt, Miss Mary Lynd, on the old homestead.

After walking for about two miles along the dusty road, Joyce turned into a small pasture. She had to cross several stone walls and barbed-wire fences before she came to the pasture where the mayflowers grew.

Joyce got safely over most all the fences, but when she came to the one which separated her from the road, she hesitated.

"Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, "I don't know how I am to get over this one, it's so high and has all that barbed wire on top!"

She climbed over the wire safely and jumped down on the other side, but when she tried to stoop down to get the mayflowers she had dropped she could not move! Her waist had caught on the barbed wire in such a way that no matter how she twisted and turned she could not loosen it, nor could she reach it with her hands.

"Oh, why can't someone hurry and come along!" scolded Joyce, stamping her foot, "I just hate this old town with nobody in it! What's that! I do believe it's an auto! Goodness! I hope so!"

Yes, there it was again—a distinct "chug, chug" in the distance. It was coming up the road towards her. But as it came in sight, Joyce saw, to her dismay, that it was coming at a very rapid rate.

"I'll never be able to stop it, at the speed it's coming," she murmured, "but I'll take a chance. Hey! there! Hel-lo! Stop a minute please!"

With a grinding of brakes, the high-powered car stopped and a young man turned towards Joyce and taking off his cap, asked, anxiously:

"What's the matter? Have you hurt yourself?"

"No, but I'm caught on this barbed wire and I've been waiting and waiting for someone to come, but no one did, and I'm so tired and I know Aunt Mary will be worrying to death about me."

It took but a minute for him to set her free, and as she sank wearily down to the ground and began to gather up the mayflowers she had dropped, she said:

"Thank you very much for coming along and helping me. I was afraid you'd go right by and not see me. You were driving awfully fast."

"I generally drive fast, especially on these country roads," he answered, "but I certainly should not have seen you if you had not called to me."

As she rose, ready to start, he said:

"Do you live far from here? Can't I take you home in the machine? I am visiting my aunt, Mrs. Grant, here in Greenboro, for a few days. My name is Robert Gordon."

"And mine is Joyce Lynd," answered Joyce. "I live with my aunt, Miss Mary Lynd, about two miles from here. I know Mrs. Grant. Isn't she just lovely?"

"Oh, yes, she's nice," he replied, carelessly. "But get into the machine and I'll take you home."

They chattered like old friends on the way back to Miss Lynd's home, and it seemed a very short ride to both of them. As they drove into the yard, Miss Lynd came hastening out to meet them, looking very worried.

"Oh, what has happened, Joyce?" exclaimed Miss Lynd, anxiously. "Have you hurt yourself, dear?"

"No, Auntie," laughed Joyce, "but I got caught on some barbed wire and —er—Mr. Gordon—came along in his machine and rescued me, so here I am. Oh! and, Auntie! I got a lot of flowers, only I had to give some to Bo—Mr. Gordon—because he was so kind in helping me and bringing me home."

"I am glad you are all right, Joyce," replied her aunt. Then turning to Bob —"And I thank you very much, Mr. Gordon, for rescuing my niece. I was very anxious about her and was just going out to meet her, myself, when you drove into the yard."

"Oh, I was very glad I could be of service, Miss Lynd," answered Bob, laughing, "so please don't thank me. Besides, it was a very pleasing incident, to myself, at least, and (holding up a large bunch of mayflowers) see what I got as a reward."

The following weeks were lively ones for both Joyce and Bob, and they could often be seen driving round the town in the machine.

The next year, when Joyce was Mrs. Robert Gordon and she started on a visit to Aunt Mary's to get some mayflowers, the parting words which Bob shouted to her, as the train pulled out, were:

"Don't get caught on any barbed-wire fences!"

CANDIDATES MUST "DOLL UP"

Will Have to Look Their Prettiest If They Expect to Find Favor With Woman Voters.

It is not necessary to go away from home to find either the latest or best, regardless of what is wanted. Consider eyebrow arching, for instance. A local beauty salon announces to the public that it does eyebrow arching, and explains that this operation "gives the eyes a deep, soulful expression with everlasting charm." Eyebrow arching advice for woman electors is more or less superfluous. It is to the men, and more especially to the men who aspire to public office, that this beauty hint is directed.

Throughout the country women are getting the ballot on equal terms with men. Women cannot vote in Indiana, but they are going to have that privilege before long. So many women have been enfranchised that they now hold the balance of power in this nation. So the woman vote will be more and more a real political problem to the candidate.

Some electors care little for the personal appearance of candidates, but most of them prefer a man of character, one who at least is presentable. Candidates in the future will have to bear this in mind. It will be well, in order to match rival candidates, for each to have a good tailor and an advisory committee on the proper shade of cravats. Immaculate linen will have to be in every candidate's platform. The high arched eyebrow will be even more essential to candidates than to the average woman. Doubtless those who have political aspirations will begin early, because eyebrow training takes time.—Indianapolis News.

SAID ICE CREAM "BURNED"

Think of It, French Kiddies Had to Be Coaxed to Partake of Strange Delicacy!

Striking proof of the well-known fact that extreme heat and extreme cold have the same physical properties was recently furnished by "Jugger" Crane, the scientist-philosopher of Company B, —th engineers, when he fed some American ice cream to a group of French children, says the Spiker.

The inhabitants of the French farm houses near the camp had never seen any ice cream until "Jugger" took them over a mess kit full of the great American delicacy.

The children gathered around expectantly. The first one took a spoonful and at once began to weep and declare that the strange food was hot.

The others who had watched rather horror stricken the fate of the first became convinced that it was some sort of white fire and would have nothing to do with the cream.

The mother had to eat virtually all the cream in order to induce them to believe it was cold rather than hot and that when not taken too fast, was good to eat. Eventually, the children ate the last of the dish.

But they partook of it gingerly, evidently greatly mystified that anything which first seemed hot, then cold, could be good to eat.

WHY

Music Is Essential Feature of Soldier's Life

The association of musical sounds and colors is usually rated a thing for people whose hyper-aestheticism ranges toward the elevation of crankdom. This, we discover, is a grave error. Color music finds champions in not merely the healthy but in the very keepers of health, the men of medicine. We have the following from the editorial typewriter of the Medical Record:

"During the war, the psychological importance of music has been demonstrated, and it is now recognized as an essential feature in the soldier's life. It is therefore of particular interest just now to note what may be termed a 'new departure' in music; though the idea may not be new, it has never been put to any extensive practical use, and color music is still more or less an unknown quantity.

"Cases are cited of pianists who had been unable to memorize and who therefore could not appear in public, but who by means of color music committed to memory and played most advanced and difficult compositions after a few hours' study of the manuscript. An interesting story is recorded of a young girl who naturally associated music and color and when asking for a particular piece would say that 'pink tune,' or that 'red tune.'

"It is thought that children with their receptive minds will be able easily to assimilate this new teaching basis. It might even prove a means of elevating the race by increasing the perception and love of music."

HUNTED TO SOME PURPOSE

How Cat Made Scientific Discovery While With Exploring Expedition in Australia.

While the cat has often served the purposes of science, it has generally been not to her own comfort and frequently with the loss of her life. One cat in Australia, however, proved her usefulness in the advancement of human knowledge without being compelled to sacrifice herself on the altar of science.

This cat belonged to a member of an expedition into the interior of Australia. One day she brought to her master a strange little animal which she had captured among the rocks.

The man handed the animal over to the naturalist of the party, who saw at once that pussy had made an important discovery. The animal she had caught was a new and apparently rare species of the tribe of insect-eating marsupials belonging to the great family of which the giant kangaroo is the most conspicuous representative.

How Wireless Is "Jammed."

"Jamming" a wireless apparatus is a practice usually resorted to by weaker ships trying to escape, and consists in sending a storm of electric waves through the air with such rapidity and strength that the pursuing ships cannot get messages of warning through to other vessels of their fleet. This plan was frequently resorted to by German sea raiders in the early stages of the war. The Goeben and Breslau, German cruisers, which were thought penned in the Adriatic by a British fleet, jammed the messages of the vessels that sighted them, and succeeded in getting out of the Straits of Otranto and into the shelter of the Dardanelles. When the Karlsruhe exchanged shots with the British cruiser Bristol during a running fight in East Indian waters it succeeded in jamming radiograms so that other British cruisers in the vicinity did not get the Karlsruhe's location in time to come up with her. As a result the German vessel escaped into South American waters, and continued to raid British shipping for some months.

How to Test Color-Blindness.

There are degrees or varieties in color-blindness, and the United States public health service finds that, while 8.6 per cent of men and 2.2 per cent of women are affected to some extent, it can be regarded as dangerous to 3.1 per cent of men and 0.7 per cent of women. These are persons who cannot safely be intrusted with any service requiring the recognition of colored signal lights. Placed in the dangerously affected class are those who are able to see less than four colors in the spectrum; those able to see more than three colors but who have the red end so shortened as to fail to detect a red light two miles away; and those with an area in the field of vision that is wholly or partly blind to red and green. In testing for color-blindness, the Eldridge-Green color lantern is preferred to the old-time method of separating colored yarns.

How to Clean Barrels.

Cleaning cider barrels and kegs to be used for other purposes can be effectively done with steam. Place the barrel on a stand and under it an iron kettle with a flat wooden cover and a three-quarter-inch pipe leading through it into the bunghole of the barrel. A fire is built under the kettle, and the steam penetrates into every corner of the barrel. The condensed steam flows back through the same pipe, depositing all dirt in the kettle, from which it can easily be cleared. If the cover is bolted to the kettle flange with a paper gasket between, a higher pressure can be generated, doing the job quicker and better, but care must be taken that the pressure does not become high enough to injure the barrel.

Do You Want to Sell?

As Fall advances, we are receiving more and more inquiries concerning Mendocino Co. real estate, and reference to our lists shows that we haven't the variety of offerings we would desire. Have you a ranch or some land that you wish to put on the market? If so, communicate with us, and let us have a description of what you have. Owing to recent activities, we expect to be in a position this fall to bring quite a number of prospective purchasers into this county, and if you wish to place your land with us, we will be pleased to show it to those who come, and to attempt to affect a sale thereof for you.

It makes no difference whether your property be rough land of little value, or whether it be a good stock ranch of several thousand acres, or a farm in the valley. We have all kinds of inquires, and we desire to have all kinds of listings.

Unless you have given someother agent the exclusive privilege in writing to make your sale for you, we invite you to list with us. Because you have given some other person the privilege of selling for you, unless it be exclusive, is no reason why you cannot list with us also, and the more people you give the listings to, the more liable you are to have your property sold.

NOW FOR RATIFICATION

President Wilson met the virtual challenge of the Senatorial opponents of the peace treaty and the League of Nations by the freest and fullest presentation of the conditions and considerations which dictated the engagements that are now awaiting ratification by the Senate. For three and a half hours the President answered the questions propounded to him by members of the Foreign Relations Committee. With patience, painstaking and the utmost frankness he responded to their request for information.

This conference was without precedent in American history, but it amply fulfilled the President's promise—made months ago—that he would take the Senate and the country into his confidence in respect to the treaty and the League. It was the fault of the Senate Committee that this complete exposition and explanation of the treaty and the covenant was not sooner forthcoming. The President upon his return from France expressed his willingness—and at the conference showed his preparedness—to clarify and justify every act of the Paris peace council.

From the lips of the man who was one of the authors of the treaty and of the League—who knows every inch of the ground between their inception and their consummation—the Foreign Relations Committee has learned that Article X of the covenant is subject to our own judgment and to the authority of Congress; that the Monroe Doctrine is beyond the purview of the League; that questions of purely domestic policy and government, like immigration and the tarriff, are equally outside its jurisdiction. If the Senators who have opposed the treaty and the League continue their obstruction it will not be for want of understanding and reassurances. Their opposition henceforth will be suspected as of a different origin.

The President made it quite plain to the members of the Foreign Relations Committee that, if they choose to regard their country's obligations lightly, they may adopt interpretations that do not alter the text or impair the force of the treaty. If such "interpretations" in a separate resolution will salve their pride without at the same time jeopardizing the advantages which the United States derives from the treaty and the security which all the world obtains through the League, the Senators are free, so far as the President is concerned, to take that course.

Whatever the action of the recalcitrant Senators may be, the people's attitude will be unmistakable. They know the President has had a greater opportunity and a better right to judge of the need and meaning and value of the treaty and of the League than the Senatorial critics of his work have had. If neither is perfect the people are not dissatisfied. They will not tolerate the Senate's attempt to give them less because they have not obtained more. They want the treaty ratified and the covenant accepted without further delay.

THE TABLES ARE TURNED

While the Democrats were in power, Republicans dinned the country's ears with criticism and denunciation. Every act and every omission was wrong. Nothing was right. The war was muddled; peace was delayed; reconstruction was impossible. The cure was a Republican Congress, with brilliant statesmen and economists like Senator Lodge and Penrose and Representatives Gillett and Mondell as its leaders.

Three months of Republican responsibility and control has not convinced the people that the change was for the better. Indeed, there is not a problem which has not become more acute; not a popular demand that has not remained unfulfilled in this fourth of a year of Republican accountability for legislation.

At the worst, the Democratic Congress preceding the one now in session was charged with doing its work poorly. But it acted. The present Republican Congress has done next to nothing—and done it very badly. If the Democrats made mistakes it was because they made efforts. Against the Republicans is fairly chargeable the greatest and costliest of all mistakes—failure to try.

In his statement to members of the Foreign Relations Committee at the White House conference, President Wilson gave some excellent reasons for speedy ratification of the treaty. He pointed out that the copper mines of Arizona, Montana and Alaska are operating at a loss; that the zinc mines of Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin are producing but half their normal output; that the lead of Missouri, Idaho and Illinois reaches only a portion of its former market; that the sale of cotton in the Central Empires and other parts of Europe is impossible and that many other commodities cannot be marketed because the channels of trade are barred until the resumption of commercial relations is made possible by the ratification of the treaty. Those nations which first conclude peace will also be the first to enjoy prosperity.

THE HIGH COST OF ANCIENT HISTORY

In a private car de luxe, the sub-committee of the House committee which is "investigating" the United States Shipping Board is now on a thirty-five days' tour of the Pacific Northwest. The Frear sub-committee which is conducting an "inquiry" into the production of aircraft, is already on the Pacific Coast.

Members of the sub-committee on the trail of the Shipping Board were accompanied by a corps of clerks and stenographers who are to transcribe and collate the "evidence", and a special crew of railroad men. The private car in which the party was so luxuriously ensconced was attached to a fast train of the Pennsylvania as it left Washington.

Only Republicans are making this long journey. They are Representative Walsh of Massachusetts, chairman and Representatives Kelly of Michigan, Hadley of Washington and Foster of Ohio. Two Democrats—Representatives Steele of Pennsylvania, and Connally of Texas—were originally appointed to membership in the sub-committee, but they declined to join the tour. Representative Connally resigned from the committee.

"I didn't care to leave Washington for five weeks," Mr. Connally explained. "There is much important legislation before Congress and I have much work to do."

Former Speaker Clark, Democratic minority leader, attempted to find a Democrat, who would undertake the trip, but all contended that their presence in Washington was more necessary than their participation in an investigation of the sort that is contemplated by the Republicans.

There is no estimate of the cost of these long tours of the two committees, but the expense of traveling in a special car, living at the best hotels for four weeks and employing expert accountants and other assistance is very large

Republican leaders of Congress have pretended that they were preparing a program of legislation upon domestic issues. There is now a fine opportunity to act. The President and the people have outlined a program.

President Wilson's League of Nations fails to please some score of Republican Senators. But it may be asked whether Mr. Lodge's league would suit Mr. Nelson, or whether anybody's league would satisfy Mr. Borah?

The reasons for some of the increases in this year's budget over those of last year and the year before are explained as follows:

Probation Officer—The sum of $1500 of this estimate is to be paid for the care of youthful delinquents of the county who have been placed in the various reform institutions of the state. The number of these wards has increased materially the past year.

Auditor—Congested condition of the quarters has made necessary the installation of a new roller shelving case at $300. The sum of $250 was allowed to defray the cost of copying live matter from old tax sale indexes which have eben filled into new index books.

Assessor—A new filing cabinet must be installed here, costing $175.00.

Maps and Block Books—Payment for bringing these up to date was withheld last year. This year the contract will be completed and the expense must be defrayed.

Registrar of Voters—The making of an index for the great register for May presidential primary entitles the clerk to 5c for each name. It is estimated there will be 10,000 names, making an increase over last year's expenditures of $500.

Court House and Grounds—The renewal of insurance falling due this year is responsible for the increase in this budget.

Care of Children—This increase is made necessary by reason of the fact that the allowance for orphan and abandoned children has been increased by the state legislature from $6.25 per month to $10 per month.

First Road District—The sum of $11,500 of this budget is made necessary on account of the obtaining of rights of way for the state highway over the Blalack and Sturtevant property north of Hopland.

Second District—Of this amount $12,000 is to go for a new bridge across Russian River to serve the settlers between the Vichy Springs crossing and the Christie bridge in Coyote Valley.

Third District—Of this budget $34,000 goes to defray the cost of bridges and rights of way on the state highway. The further sum of $7,500 will be used to start the road on the east side of Little Lake valley, and $21,500 will be used to begin the widening and cutting down of grades on the road from Two Rivers to Laytonville.

Fourth District—The town of Monroe is to be connected with the state highway at Leggett Valley, making necessary an expenditure of $20,000.

Fifth District—The contemplated work on the Greenwood-Elk Creek grade will take $4,500, while $3000 will be spent on the Navarro grade from the Navarro bridge to Cameron's.

Gualala Bridge—This was an emergency made necessary by reason of the collapse of the bridge and was avoidable.

State Highway Bond Interest—This increase is beyond the prevention of anyone. The interest has to be paid by the county on the money expended within the county, and the interest will increase each year until the program of state highway construction outlined for this county has been finished.

Unapportioned County School Fund—The Legislature last spring increased the compensation of teachers and the allowance per pupil average daily attendance. Had the full increase thus authorized been allowed, the rate would have gone to about 62½ cents. However, the law requires that this tax shall not exceed 50 cents, and the supervisors complied with the law, and set the rate at 50 cents.

The decrease in the Superior Court expenditures is due to Sheriff Byrnes and District Attorney McCowen, whose team work has almost eliminated jury trials, the big majority of criminals confessing and taking their medicine without trial.

Attorney H. L. Preston and wife motored to Lake county today Mr. Preston having business before the superior court in Lakeport.
